June Worship

Worship is at 10:30AM in person and on Zoom

June 4th, Trinity Sunday, on this Sunday we will go back to the beginning to see where it all started. The first chapter of Genesis that captures the seven-day creation story was one of the last story/poems written of the five books of Moses (the Pentateuch). It was a reminder to those exiled and dispersed by Babylon that the world was created in goodness and to hold to the Sabbath to keep their identity and their sanity. How do we live this out today in a world that going 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year? How do we rest?

June 11th, 2nd Sunday after Pentecost, Matt Llewellyn-Otter from Out Front Minnesota will be giving us the good word this morning as we gather down in Harbor Park to help celebrate Cook County Pride. Pilgrim UCC from Des Moines, IA are gracing us with a Youth Matins Choir. Bring a lawn chair and a joyful spirit. Communion will be served, all are welcome.

June 18th, 3rd Sunday after Pentecost, Jesus, in the gospel of Matthew, sends out the 12 out by themselves to share God's love, to heal those we come across, and give God's peace. There are lots of warnings that Jesus gives them about what they are going to face out in the world, but he sends them out nevertheless, because they are needed.

June 25th 4th Sunday after Pentecost, in preparation for our Summer Meeting, we are going back to baptism. Most recognize that this is our entry into the church. We will look at John's story of Jesus and Nicodemus about baptism being born of both water and Spirit. This is the beginning of the sermon series on Covenant, which will go for six weeks.

Pastor's Report

If nothing else, the Festival of Homiletics has given me lots of fodder for my writing and preaching, which is a good thing. This month is a busy one for our church (Pride, Summer Meeting, gatherings for food) and for the wider UCC (Minnesota Conference Meeting on the 9th and 10th, and the 34th General Synod starting on June 30th). One of the presenters at the Festival talked about how the future of the Church (universal) depends on Radical Inclusivity. Her outline tells us that Radical Inclusivity looks like this:

Radical Inclusivity must: be radical with no hedging; recognize, loves, and celebrates those on the margins; recognizes harm done in the name of God; be intentional and creates ministry on the margins; goal is to be the Church; requires a new way of seeing and being; requires awareness; does not hide and undoes shame and fear; recognize diversity on the margins; must be linked to preaching and teaching; demands hospitality; and sustains and celebrates everyone!

She then asked a rhetorical question at the end, "What will it cost us to be Radically Inclusive?" And her answer was, "Everything!"

Our local church here is working our way toward this in the proclamation of "No matter who you are or where you are on life's journey, you are welcome here!" and not having an official membership list and that anyone can vote and participate (though I am still not quite on board with the last part). We are working toward a new way of seeing and being.

Our Minnesota Conference is working on this by requiring all authorized ministers to take Anti-Racism training every two years, is working through the conference staff and leadership to minimize the privileges we take for granted, and is figuring out how to live into the future.

Rev. Nadia Bolz-Weber is the keynote speaker at the General Synod (our national church meeting that happens every 2 years). She is definitely a pastor who seeks those on the margins and is a prophet by calling out the institutional church when it is more concerned with reputation than with loving thy neighbor. The UCC, more than most mainline churches, has sought out the least of these and those on the margins, and much of that time has done so by being dragged kicking and screaming to opening our hearts and doors. Thank God for those who have not given up, but forged ahead to help us create a Radically Inclusive church. We are not there yet, but we are closer than we have ever been. God is good. All the time.

Peace

Pastor Enno

Prayer for the Month of June

God of sun and rain, thunder and gentle breezes. We thank you this day for the abundant life on our planet and the abundant love which is ours from you. As we go to work, do our daily chores, and take care of family and home, remind us again and again that with you all things are possible. Help us to live a life that is centered in you and open to the world around us. Be with our church as we live out our faith and share the good news. Be with our community as it strives to be a place of opportunity and neighbors helping neighbors. Be with our country as we tackle the tough challenges; give us wisdom and the courage to do what is right. Amen.

A Message from the Moderator

By Tom Yuhasey

With our upcoming summer meeting fast approaching I have to start figuring what matters need to be addressed and how this is to be done.

One of our objectives will be encouraging our congregants to be part of one of our many committees, whose activities are essential.

Members of the stewardship committee along with Pastor Enno are going to be presenting descriptions of the responsibilities involved with each committee. Our hope is you will find something that touches your heart.

Myself, being the somewhat reluctant moderator of the Board of Directors, and longtime stewardship committee person, I get it when someone is unsure about committing when asked to serve. After a year as moderator, I thought maybe I could slip out of the position at the June meeting. Jenny however has informed me I signed up for two years and she is going to hold me to it.

After thinking about it, even though I'm not sure Jenny is correct, I've decided to serve a second year. I'm not certain what year two is going to bring but I can say I was happy with year one. I am especially pleased with all the support I got from the other board members and from the congregation. Getting to know the people on the board this past year, and gaining an appreciation of their skills and gifts made tasks seem more doable. It was comforting when we dealt with some difficult issues, none of the board members ever placed their own personal feelings or agenda ahead of the good of the church.

I was also relieved during the Winter Congregational Meeting, something I really dreaded and knew I was going to fall short, that so many from the congregation rallied to keep us/me on track and get our business completed. After some of the challenges we've faced in the past, it kind of restored my belief that things are going to be alright at this church and we all play a part in it.

If you are considering giving some of your time in service to your church, you will find like I did, the giving part in the equation seems to work both ways. Amen.

Protecting God's Gift of Creation – Psalm 24:1

Minnesota Conference 61st Annual Meeting

June 9-10, 2023

College of St. Benedict, St. Joseph, MN, with an online option

REGISTER

We acknowledge the College of Saint Benedict and Saint John's University occupies the original homelands of the Dakhóta and Anishinaabe peoples. We honor, respect, and acknowledge the Indigenous peoples forcibly removed from this territory, whose connection remains today.

The Minnesota Conference will gather in June, building on the hybrid model we inaugurated last year of virtual and in-person workshops, meetings, and worship. We seek to engage our youth and young families, our local congregations, our state, and the Spirit to participate in protecting and renewing the Earth, which is God's and the fullness thereof.

The sacred gift of creation entrusted to us by God is being destroyed. As we imagine and live into the church of the 21st century, let us remember, "The earth is God's, and everything in it, the world, and all who live in it." (Psalm 24:1) Let us come, as children of this sacred creation and the enduring body of Christ, as we are being called forward with the charge of protecting God's gift of creation.

We know that the work of conservation and eco-justice is a familiar one to many of us, while others have struggled to find traction or see any other way forward. Our keynote speaker will be the Rev. Michael Malcom, ordained in the United Church of Christ and founder and executive director of the People's Justice Council in Birmingham, Alabama. He will share how he created an unparalleled opportunity for faith communities throughout Alabama to unite and raise their voice against environmental racism, economic oppression, environmental injustice, and climate change.

Public theologian — a pastor who ‘sits with weirdoes’ — will be 2023 Synod keynoter

by Hans Holznagel | published on Nov 8, 2022

The keynote speaker has been named for the United Church of Christ’s 2023 General Synod. She’s a Lutheran minister described by one national news service as “a former standup comedian and recovering alcoholic with a streak of dark humor.”

Another news outlet noted her “unusual form of evangelism,” which “may be the only kind that can break through the crust of dislike and suspicion which insulates increasing numbers of younger Americans from Christianity.” As for herself, the Rev. Nadia Bolz-Weber says she’s someone who “always sits in the corner with the other weirdoes.” A best-selling author and the founding pastor of Denver’s House for All Sinners & Saints, Bolz-Weber will speak Saturday, July 1, during the UCC’s biennial national meeting at the Indiana Convention Center in Indianapolis.

Registration will open in early January at the General Synod website. Registered visitors, like all delegates, will have access to the keynote as well as the Synod’s many exhibits and business sessions, June 30–July 4.

Public theologian

Having led the Denver congregation from 2008 to 2015, Bolz-Weber now pursues ministry as a “public theologian.” This takes several forms:

Her podcast, “The Confessional,” encourages listeners to “forget the selfies and social media updates of everyone at their best.” As its host, she “invites guests to share stories about times they were at their worst.”

She describes her interactive newsletter, "The Corners," as "water, God willing, for those planted in the corners" of life.

National and international news outlets have profiled her and her ministry. They include The New Yorker, BBC News, The Guardian, The Atlantic, NPR, The Washington Post, Religion News Service, and, in Germany, Die Zeit.

She is the subject of dozens of online videos. An example is a series of brief "Have A Little Faith" episodes at the MAKERS YouTube channel. They have received tens of thousands of views.

Her books include three memoirs that made The New York Times best-seller list: Pastrix: The Cranky, Beautiful Faith of a Sinner and Saint (2013, updated 2021); Accidental Saints: Finding God in All the Wrong People (2015) and Shameless: A Case for Not Feeling Bad About Feeling Good \(About Sex\) (2019).

The Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, which ordained her in 2008, formalized that ministry in 2021 when it installed her as pastor for public witness with its Rocky Mountain Synod. The ELCA is a "full communion" partner of the UCC.

In a 5-minute MAKERS video recorded in 2018, Bolz-Weber describes her life's journey.

'Not like a pastor'

In a 2018 YouTube video, Bolz-Weber described growing up in Colorado in the conservative Church of Christ. "The God that I was taught to fear was like an angry, capricious bastard with a killer surveillance system who is, basically, constantly disappointed in me for being a human being," she said.

At age 12, she was diagnosed with Graves' Disease, an auto-immune disorder that kept her from closing her eyelids. "My eyes literally bulged out of my skull," she said. "I developed this anger about how people treated me. And it ends up that if you add a lot of drugs and alcohol to the anger, then it no longer protects you. It starts to kill you."

The journey included dropping out of college, working in restaurants, doing stand-up comedy, eventually finding sobriety, returning to school and embracing Lutheran theology — especially its emphasis on grace. In 2004, as "literally the only religious person in my friend circle," she was asked to lead a memorial service for a comedian friend who had died. At that point she sensed her call to ministry.

"My transparency about my failings, and all of the things that make me seem, like, not like a pastor, are what allow me to be certain people's pastor."

'I love the corners'

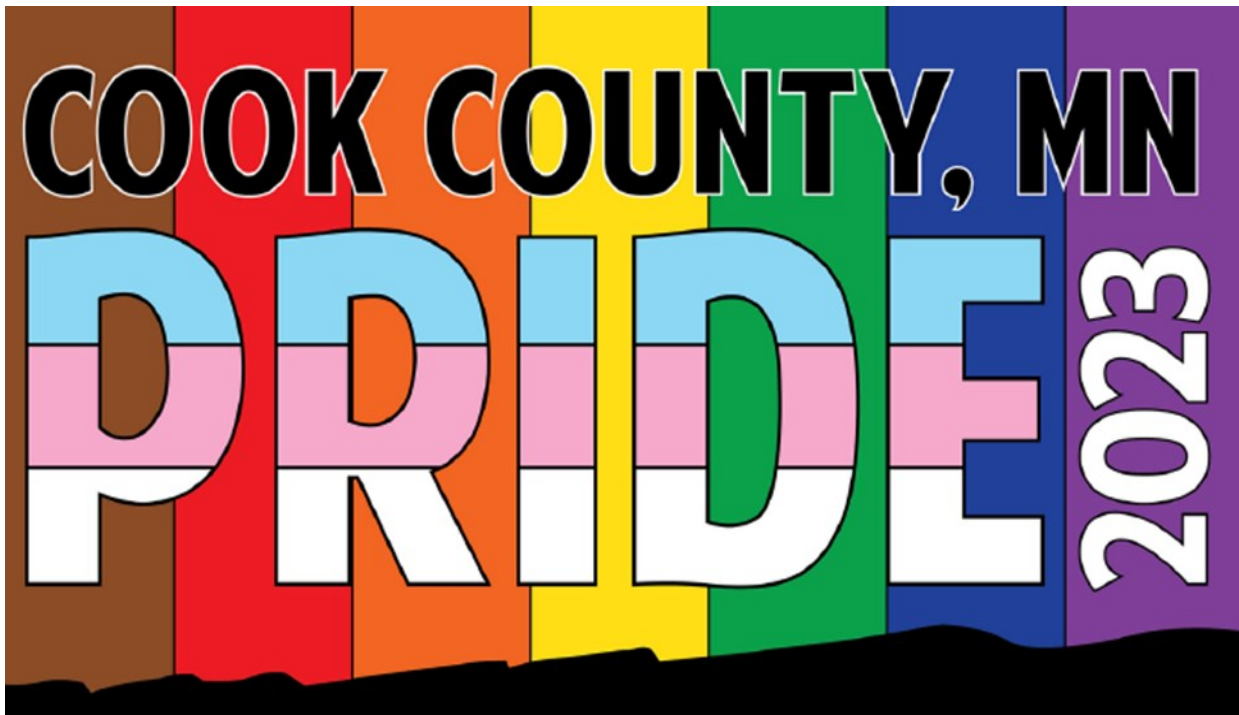

"Rev. Bolz-Weber is a well-known public theologian who we believe has a relevant and prophetic message for the church," said the Rev. Karen Georgia Thompson, UCC associate general minister and administrator of the General Synod.

"Our theme for this General Synod is 'making all things new.' We wanted to find a keynote speaker who could challenge and inspire the church for the opportunities that lie ahead as we move beyond the health pandemic and deal with other social justice issues that are before us. She knows the church, has a pastor's heart, and her books have been a resource and inspiration for many."

"It may feel as though some of us have been relegated to the corners," Bolz-Weber says in describing her newsletter. "But here's the thing: from the corners, I can see the whole room."

"I love the corners. I always have. It is where I will always choose to sit, because I love outcasts, queers and the girls who talk too loud. I love humor that comes out of lives that have not been easy. I love sober drunks, single dads, sex workers and the guy who lost a leg in the war. These are my people."

Rooted and Rising

Mark your calendars: Summer Solstice Fest, June 21

The Earth Justice Group--Rooted and Rising will host a MidSommer Solstice Fest hotdog roast on June 21, beginning at 5 p.m. The Wednesday evening sing-along will follow at 6.

We are celebrating the planter garden boxes and other climate-resilient work improvements around the church.

Menu: Grilled hotdogs, potato chips, condiments, juice and fizzy water.

Please bring a Rhubarb or other fruit dessert treat to share.

We want to make this a low-to-zero waste event. Please consider bringing your own dishes and eating utensils, if possible.

This will be a free-will offering fundraiser to cover the un-budgeted project costs for the planters.

The Summer Solstice actually falls on Wednesday, June 21, this year. Let's make this a community social event.

Climate Justice group continues work on city rain gardens

The group began to work on the rain gardens by the library on May 15. We are making steady progress. We invite all interested people from the community to join us on Monday evenings at 5.

We will take Memorial Day off and pick up later in the week or next week.

First Congregational UCC and MN Interfaith Power and Light began the work last year as an action plan to demonstrate ways to locally care for the Earth. Our goal was to rehabilitate several neglected rain gardens in town that help prevent toxic run-off from going into the Lake.

Planter Boxes Ready for Community Gardeners

Finishing touches are in progress on the planter boxes. One community gardener has asked for 2 boxes; the rest are still available as of this writing. People on the Wait List have first refusal, but if there are no takers by June 6, the remaining boxes will be available for a church member.

Contact Bruce Tyler for more information.
